We've always had the sense that the best way to navigate the vagaries of fashion and obsolescence—the inevitable fact that stylish design becomes dated in a nano-second—is to choose freely from the world of possibilities. We've tried to avoid working in a particular idiom and instead, we've employed hyper-eclecticism as an approach to create something that is truly modern. To this end, we've used bold color and pattern, modern lighting, traditional furnishings, exaggerated moldings, and luxurious fabrics to create this bricolage.

A study should be a source of inspiration—it should act not only as a place where one can concentrate and effectively get work done, but also be a refuge where one can think, dream and relax. This year's study hopes to accomplish all this with a coherent space designed with two distinct areas. In the first space one can work at a well-appointed desk or retire to a sitting area inhabited by a sofa, chair and coffee table, offering an opportunity to either work individually or to entertain guests. The room's other space contains a round table where a meeting could be held, with an étagère providing ample storage for books and accessories.

The inspiration for our study was a jewel box, one saturated with a gorgeous turquoise color that is grounded and tempered by earth tones like chocolate, taupe, chalky white and beige, with unexpected pops of chartreuse. The mix of colors and textures is rich, vibrant and inviting to the touch. We have assembled luxurious natural materials including a focal wall bathed in shells, a quartz lamp, dark woods and branch coral accents. The artwork and accessories are full of life and energy, with each piece telling a story about the person who inhabits this space and of their travels. The assortment of objects has been assembled with a curatorial eye and is lovingly displayed throughout.

Using menswear-inspired tweed, cashmere, leather and suede, along with a soothing palette of soft cream and rich chocolate in multiple textures, the library is peaceful and traditional, but with a measured dash of drama. A zebra and suede ottoman and a touch of brilliant red are added just to keep things interesting.

An updated version of the classic Greek key motif is used on the carpet and the pillow trim while lush upholstered walls envelop the room to create the feel of an inner sanctum. A careful but relaxed attention to detail is displayed throughout—in the beautiful moldings, custom built-ins, sofa tufting and the nickel-plated nail-head trim on the game chairs.

Today's library is a relaxing retreat for private moments or time together, a place to read by the fire, partake in a game of chess or enjoy cocktails and conversation with friends. It's a room to display personal treasures, books, artwork, trophies and photos. It's traditional, yet comfortable, striking yet soothing, and as creative and daring as the books that fill it.

When we peel the onions and scrape the carrots, or pour the champagne – a Jeroboam or Balthazar – we don't do it for strangers. We only share with friends in our kitchen and it's that sparkle and warmth that are the essence of our extended family. When the garden vegetables re-form themselves into cauliflower soup with the very best Stilton, it takes a crew of the dedicated to make it happen. The oysters? The tomatoes and corn? We found them and they are the freshest, the best. Now to find the right knife.

If good food, drink and company are the way to the heart, then the space used to prepare such delights must encompass the heart as well. The kitchen is the home of family recipes and familiar smells, a place that entrances the senses in both form and function.

Today's kitchen must balance the clean and sleek arrangement of a modern and productive working space with the warmth and comfortable nature of an earlier time when friends and family gathered together. Although there are certainly occasions when we wish our friends were drawn to other spaces in the house, with the right convivial spirit, the kitchen is an opportunity for everyone to join together and share creativity and joy.

Bon Appetit!

The Family Room is often the very heart of a home, a space where you retreat after a busy day to gather, relax and reconnect. Comfort and function are as important as aesthetics. This room is clean and contemporary, fresh and fun. The use of warm and inviting colors and textures establishes serenity and calm while bold patterns in the fabrics and the strong geometric lines of the furnishings create excitement and vitality. The dark bamboo flooring and the textured grass cloth wall covering set the overall tone of the space. The richly-colored fabrics, beautiful to the eye and comfortable to the touch, define the surroundings and help make the family room a gracious and captivating retreat. It's a perfect place to read, relax, listen to music or watch a favorite TV show.

The bath has evolved from a purely utilitarian room into a luxurious oasis where one can escape the overwhelming activities that now compose our long days. Inspired by the glamour of the 1940s, this bath seeks to be a sophisticated and relaxing retreat.

A vintage-inspired sit-down vanity surrounded by mirrors sits opposite geometric his and hers sinks where everyday tasks are completed. Walking further in, one experiences the change from task to bliss with a central, smooth white tub surrounded by a sleek fireplace and inviting daybed. A glass enclosed shower and separate water closet complete the look while subtly concealed storage allows for plenty of space for necessary items. Relaxing comes easy in this elegant all-encompassing retreat.

The bedroom was envisioned as a personal retreat, a private escape. The rich and saturated color palette, along with the many layers of pattern, texture and surface, creates an inviting and luxurious environment. This space is truly a mix of Old World sophistication, with a classic, modern and sexy sensibility, making it both ageless and timeless.

The living room welcomes you with its comfortable and classic look. Here we have an inviting seating area, beautiful artwork, a desk for correspondence, and a low bookshelf for favorite books. The balance of neutral and soothing green shades provides a sophisticated backdrop for comfortable furniture. A living room, after all, should be not only beautiful for entertaining, but also a warm and restful oasis from the often too hectic pace of our lives.

Beautiful rooms are hypnotic. They command your attention, make you linger and return to time and time again. So goes the dining room, arresting as well as magical in its modern mix of antiques and contemporary art. The unexpected and lush de Gournay plum blossom wallpaper and the final flourish of a dramatic and graphic painted floor make for a truly elegant and unforgettable space.
